

SENATE MAY PUSH WHITE SLAVE CASES

Resolution Asks McReynolds If District Attorneys Have Been Told to Drop Prosecutions.

The question whether Attorney General McReynolds is putting the soft pedal on the enforcement of the Mann white slave law was raised in the Senate today by Senator Jones of Washington.

With the Dicks "amnesty" affair still fresh in mind, it is alleged that the Department of Justice has issued instructions to district attorneys calling off prosecutions in white slave cases unless of international character.

Senator Jones introduced a resolution directing the Attorney General to advise the Senate whether such instructions had been issued.

Senator Kohn, Democratic leader, objected to consideration of the resolution, and it will come up tomorrow in regular order.

It is believed the Senate will pass the resolution, though it may prove embarrassing to the Attorney General.

No Effect in London.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The passing of the New Haven dividend apparently had no effect on American shares on the London market, which opened quiet. There were few transactions in American stock, but all showed a better tone.

NAVAL HOLIDAY IDEA SCOUTED AS FUTILE

Navy League Says Any Such Peace Movement Would Give Some Nation an Advantage.

"The absolute futility of the naval holiday idea," says a statement issued by the Navy League of the United States, "is evident to all students of international affairs, and is slowly dawning on the public in general. The position of certain European countries with reference to any move toward limiting armament will cause all such pronouncements to fall flat."

The league points out that Germany, in particular, ridicules the idea of following such a move made by Great Britain at this time. Britain is now supreme on the seas, and a holiday of any length would leave her supreme for just that time. Other nations are making strenuous efforts to gain upon her strength, and those gains would be held back just so long as the holiday lasted.

Eleven Ships for Russia.

Russia, for instance, has not a single dreadnought completed, but she has eleven in course of construction. She is anxious to get into the big ship game. She scouts the idea of stopping work on those dreadnoughts. Her position is further shown by her failure to take any step toward the calling of The Hague peace conference which was scheduled for 1915 for which preparations should now be going forward.

The privilege of calling the conference has been hitherto accorded to the czar. Europe has already made up its mind that the conference is to be postponed, and that postponement may be indefinite.

Americans, the Navy League points out, have some difficulty in getting the European view of all these measures looking to reduction of armament or international peace. They do not appreciate, for instance, that Europe refused to allow even a consideration of reduction of armament at the last Hague conference. Germany and Russia would have withdrawn from that conference if the question had been insisted upon. They will not enter the next conference if these questions are even considered. Since the Balkan war both these nations are materially increasing their armed forces.

Holiday Plan Dead.

It therefore becomes evident that, neither would for a moment agree to the consideration of a naval holiday. Both have scouted the idea since it was suggested by Great Britain. Without the assent of those powers the suggestion can produce no results. It is, therefore, absolutely dead, despite the enthusiasm that may be shown toward it by the more progressive nations.

It is practically impossible, says the league, to suggest any such movement with reference to some rival. The watchful jealousy of these nations makes it impossible to get them to consent to such measures as would be possible to a nation situated like the United States. The proposal of a naval holiday could, under no conditions, have lived to get past the bustling overwork of Germany. It is a bubble that glistened a moment and is gone.

FEDERAL OWNERSHIP PLAN IS ADVANCED

Appropriation for Mail Cars Looked Upon as Significant by Members of Congress.

The fact that the House Committee on Postoffices has decided to favor the appropriation of $100,000 to be used by the Postmaster General in the purchase of steel railway mail cars is attracting much attention in Congress.

The proposal is strongly endorsed by Postmaster General Burleson. The figures on the rental of cars under the present system and on the cost of cars under a system of purchase have been gone over carefully by experts, including Chairman Moon of the Postoffices Committee. The calculations show that it will be economy for the Government to buy the cars.

While the plan has not yet passed Congress, indications are that it will pass. Several members of the committee look on the proposed purchase of cars as indicative of the trend of sentiment in favor of Government ownership. The fact that the Government is considering taking over the telephone lines is another indication of the scope which Government ownership sentiment is attaining.

Once a Dusty, Cumbersome Piece of Furniture—Now a Five-Dollar Bill

This is no tale of legerdemain. A very practical story, an everyday affair.

Mrs. J. had some old furniture. It was in good condition, but she had no further need for it—so stored it away in the garret.

But Mrs. J., somehow or other, never could go to that storeroom without feeling "I wish I could sell that furniture."

She wished it out loud one day, and Mary, the cook—who cooked for Mrs. J. because she had used a Situation

Wanted Ad.—spoke up: "Why don't you Put It In The Times?"

Mrs. J. did. And the next day Mary made frequent trips from kitchen to front door—answering calls from the ad.

Later on that day a wagon backed up, left a five-dollar bill and took the furniture away.

All sort of miscellaneous articles are daily sold through the "For Sale—Miscellaneous" columns of The Times.
